God is Leading us, Even if We Cannot See the Way!

By Dr. Theresa Burke

"When they had gone, an angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a dream. 'Get up,' he said, 'take the child and His mother and escape to Egypt. Stay there until I tell you, for Herod is going to search for the child to kill Him'" (Matthew 2:13).

Why did King Herod want to kill the baby Jesus?

Naturally, he was afraid that Jesus would take his place. He knew the prophecies were true, and he certainly didn't want to give up his throne. He felt threatened and did not want to lose his power or status. He was willing to destroy many little innocent lives. Little did he know that God chose to come to us in the vulnerability of a humble child and had no interest in commanding Herod's resources!

I've always known that Mary and Joseph had to travel a challenging journey in their early courtship and family life. The amount of trust required to follow God's unfolding, precarious plan was nothing short of extraordinary!

It's no wonder angels appeared and gave them periodic instructions! Indeed, God does the same thing for us if we tune in and listen. Obviously, the same powerful forces exist that have an agenda to eliminate the possibility that Christ could break through the bondage of despair and death, and conquer the kingdom of evil.

When we are called and inspired to do good works that bring life, there will always be King Herod's seeking to destroy the image of God.

This difficult journey has repeated itself many times as we tried to grow our ministry. Thank God I listened to the voice in my soul which has propelled me on.

How thankful I am that God guided Joseph and his family. Each step was planned and blessed by their heavenly Father. They obediently followed, even though they did not always understand.

Likewise, I'm grateful that God has been guiding our ministries in countries all over the world. When we have no idea where our ministry will go next, God is orchestrating events and raising up volunteers to coincide with our needs. Our job is to stay open, obedient and receptive to Him directing our paths.

As we say as part of the Rachel's Vineyard Retreat – every day is a new day where we each receive an annunciation. An invitation to carry Christ into the world and allow him to grow within our hearts and souls. I pray for the grace to say yes – and we know that God and his legion of angels and saints are guiding all of you in your efforts to be humble obedient servants of God, despite the persecution. May his love and light dwell in our hearts and help us prepare the way for his return into hearts broken by abortion and abuse.

"We are always obligated to follow our consciences. But, if we're sincere in our faith, we must also acknowledge that conscience does not "invent" truth. Rather, conscience must carefully seek truth out and conform itself to truth once discovered, no matter how inconvenient. Conscience is never merely a matter of personal opinion or private preference."
~ Archbishop Charles J. Chaput, O.F.M. Cap.

Putting Lives Back Together By Mathew Biddle

Eleven o'clock at night. Everyone in the house is fast asleep. The telephone rings. Jenny Shier is slightly startled, but answers the phone with, 'Hello, this is Jenny speaking'. Nervously, the caller says 'Hello', then hangs up. Jenny Shier goes back to sleep with mixed feelings. On the one hand she is disappointed that she was unable to help the caller any further. But on the other hand she is pleased. The woman whose nervous, scared voice she heard has just taken the first courageous step towards healing.

This is a common occurrence for Jenny Shier in her work as the state director of Rachel's Vineyard, a non-profit, volunteer-run organisation that offers grief counselling to women suffering from the trauma of abortion. Mrs Shier often receives telephone calls from women who are desperate for healing, some of whom have suffered from the pain of their untold secret for many years. "It takes a lot of courage because they've kept their secret for so long and they are afraid of being judged, but they are not judged at Rachel's Vineyard," Mrs. Shier said. "When people have an abortion they try to put it behind them and try to suppress it. It takes 5 to 20 years for some people to actually seek help ... I've even had people who have waited and suffered for 40 years before coming.”

The first Rachel’s Vineyard retreat site in Western Australia began in 2009, and currently holds two weekend retreats each year. “I find that a small group very quickly bonds and they become very supportive of each other,” Mrs. Shier said. “Everybody gets enough time to tell their story, to do their grief work and anger work, so that’s why I deliberately keep them small.”

Although the retreat participants are primarily women, the work of Rachel’s Vineyard is aimed at anyone affected by abortion.

“Husbands, boyfriends, grandparents and siblings come to our retreats,” Mrs. Shier said. “Post-abortion stress negatively affects relationships; it can affect bonding with future children and [cause] problems with existing children that people don’t often realise.”

“You can see the healing in relationships starts to happen on the retreat between people, and that’s a very positive thing,” Mrs. Shier said. “There are young women who have suffered for many years, from their teens, who, following the retreat, have got their lives back on track, have gone to university, finished their degree, and got on with their lives.

“Others ... feel comfortable going back to church. They feel they can go back to their church community and not feel ashamed or guilty. People feel they are welcome back and that’s a beautiful thing.” Unlike other forms of counselling which rely heavily on what is called ‘talk therapy’, the retreats held by Rachel’s Vineyard adopt a different strategy. “There are no lectures, talks or teachings,” Mrs. Shier said. “It is an ‘experience’ of God in the context of one’s suffering and grief. We engage the whole person, very gently, and that enables them to be able to tell their story later on in the retreat.”

The small group setting also helps to build friendships between the participants. “They grow together, almost like they’ve known each other for a long time, because they’ve all been through a similar experience ... it’s really powerful,” Mrs. Shier said. “[Dr Burke] found that the majority of victims wanted to join with others who had suffered the same loss and thereby end the isolation and secrecy.”

Participants are also invited to the Sacrament of Reconciliation on the Saturday night of the retreat. On Sunday, a memorial service for children who have died through abortion is held, followed by a special Mass of Entrustment for them.

For Jenny Shier, volunteering her time to contribute to Rachel’s Vineyard continues to be rewarding.

A Floreat-Wembley parishioner said she had learnt that miracles still happen. “I’ve seen [people] change over the course of the weekend,” she said. “They walk in at the beginning of the weekend, all very scared ... When they leave on the Sunday after lunch they look years younger and they’re happy. I’ve learnt an awful lot from the women because they suffer in silence and they try to get on with their lives, but this secret that they try to ignore won't let them have any peace. The human condition is exactly the same now as it was in biblical times – people need healing and Rachel's Vineyard provides psychological and spiritual healing.”

And no matter how many late night or early morning phone calls she gets, Mrs Shier will continue to answer the call. “It's the best work in the world to be involved in because you see the transformation in people ... It's a beautiful ministry to be involved in!”

You can contact Jenny Shier on (08) 9445 7464 or via email: rachelsvineyardwa@gmail.com.

Rachel's Vineyard Recommends:

I Will Carry You By Selah

Article Written By: Katie Burke

The loss of a child in any circumstance is heartbreaking. When a woman learns that her unborn baby is unable to survive outside of the womb, the family is faced with an indescribable pain. The joy of carrying and expecting a child is quickly replaced with feelings of grief and loss. Many families are persuaded by the medical field to terminate the pregnancy. The decision to carry the baby to full term is a courageous and heartbreakingly beautiful experience, and one that seems impossible to put into words. The recording group, Selah, did just that. Singer Todd Smith and his wife, Angie, learned that their daughter Audrey suffered from a developmental condition rendering her incompatible with life outside of the womb. They decided to provide her with the best life that they could, no matter how short. During the pregnancy, the family had many things they wanted Audrey to experience. They did things like traveling to Disney World so that her sisters could show her Cinderella's Castle. The family cherished every moment of their brief time with her. At birth, the family finally got to see Audrey and spent a few precious hours with her. Audrey's older sisters were able to meet and hold their baby sister. Todd and Angie took their daughter's beautiful life and wrote her a legacy; a song in her honor that could provide comfort for others in similar situations. “I Will Carry You” depicts the painful experience in a glorious light. They exclaim, “I will praise the one who's chosen me to carry you”. She describes the experience of carrying Audrey while she's here, knowing that once she leaves this Earth, God will carry her. The strength of both God's love, and the mother's love, are what gets them through the sorrow and loss of their child. Every moment they experienced with Audrey was a miracle, and one that they will treasure for the rest of their lives. This song inspires others to know that they too have been blessed.

“There's a greater story written long before me, because He loves you like this. So I will carry you while your heart beats here. Long beyond the empty cradle, through the coming years. I will carry you all my life, and I will praise the One who's chosen me to carry you.”

~ Selah

Message from the Pastoral Director

Dear Brothers and Sisters,

As testimonies were given at the March for Life and West Coast Walk for Life by those who have experienced abortion and healing, the name "Rachel's Vineyard" was repeated over and over. The fruits of this ministry are obvious.

And as a special encouragement, as we were conducting the Silent No More Gathering at the steps of the Supreme Court, and as so many prepared to give their testimonies, none other than the Papal Nuncio, Archbishop Carlo Maria Vigano, gave the opening prayer and blessing to our gathering. He pointed out that he was giving this blessing in the name of Pope Francis, of whom he is the personal representative in the United States. The Pope, of course, is personally aware of Rachel's Vineyard, as he has told me personally, and is always reminding people to trust more in the mercy of God.

May the testimonies that were given in these recent weeks reverberate throughout the year and encourage many others to experience the healing grace that comes through Rachel's Vineyard!

Sincerely,
Fr. Frank Pavone

TENDING THE GARDEN

With love, end hunger.
With love, heal the broken.

Love never fails.

These words have become an inspiration for my life. My business - Render Creations - is dedicated to helping those who are hungry, those who are broken and those who are looking for peace.
